LEVEL UP PROTECTING YOUR MONEY

Great news! You're finally building up a healthy-looking bank balance. Now you have to keep your money safe.

There are small steps you can take each day to protect your money, such as checking your bank statements for any unusual transactions, and bigger steps such as checking the person or company you're paying is genuine before making payments.

You can test your fraud-spotting skills with the scenarios below. Answers are on the next page.

What would you do and why?	- phone to the shopping centre's public Wi the perfect pair of shoes but need to chec	Fi. You see balance to see if you can afford them. What would you do and why?
SCENARIO THREE You're out with a friend for lunch. You give the card to pay whilst you go to the toilet and they for your PIN in case contactless doesn't work.	m your ′ ask t would you do and why?
	Phone to the shopping centre's public With the perfect pair of shoes but need to check balance to see if you can afford them. What would you do and why? SCENARIO THREE You're out with a friend for lunch. You give them card to pay whilst you go to the toilet and they for your PIN in case contactless doesn't work.

LEVEL UP PROTECTING YOUR MONEY

SCENARIO ONE Don't send them the cash. Always check with the person by calling or messaging them to make sure they actually asked for the money. Don't contact them on social media. Your friend may have been Don't contact them on social media. Your friend may have been hacked or someone may be impersonating their social media accounts, and you could be the victim of an attempted scam.

ANSWERS

Don't check your balance. Public WiFi is not secure and could allow fraudsters to gain access to your financial details. It would be better to use your normal mobile data to connect to the internet, or better still, go to a cashpoint or bank to check your balance.

* * *

Don't leave your card in someone else's possession, and never share your PIN with anyone, not even your best friend, and especially not in public where someone could overhear. The only person who should ever know your PIN and use your card is you.

